CATHOLIC DIOCESE of MEMPHIS

September 29, 2019

Mother Mary Magevney

On September 13, on the night of a full moon, the Magevney Society held a high requiem Mass (in the Extraordinary Form) in remembrance of prominent Memphis historical figure Mother Mary Agnes Magevney (1841–1891) at St. Peter Church in downtown Memphis. The Mass was celebrated entirely in Latin with the celebrant, Rev. Yoelvis Gonzalez, facing the altar. Complete traditional vestments were worn.

She was the first child of Eugene and Mary Magevney, who arrived in Memphis when its population was only about 1,000. It is believed that the first Catholic Mass in Memphis was celebrated in their home which is next door to St. Peter Church. It has long been called "The Cradle of Catholicism" in Memphis.

Mother Mary Agnes's baptism was held in the parlor of the home and is the first Catholic baptism recorded in West Tennessee. She was educated at St. Agnes Academy in Memphis and later became a sister. In 1882, she traveled by train to Galveston, Texas, which was in dire need of teachers, to start a Dominican congregation.

"This is in fulfillment of one of her dying requests," said Michael A. Beauregard, who founded the Magevney Society, a small group of Memphians who are trying to draw attention to the virtuous life of Mother Mary Agnes. She suffered terribly towards the end of her life, offered up her suffering, and made a specific request on her deathbed for the faithful to offer Masses for her soul.

Some of the personal effects of Mother Mary Magevney were displayed at St. Peter's after the requiem Mass (some for the very first time) and will stay on display between Sept. 11 and mid-October. In the collection of her belongings is a handkerchief that was used to wipe away her last tears.

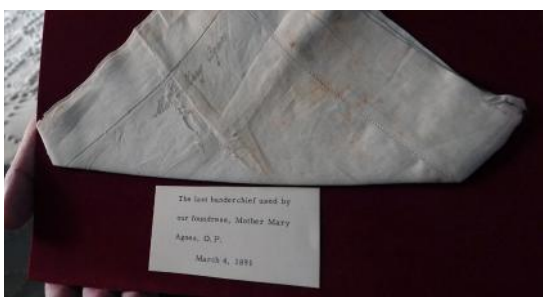

"Mother Mary Magevney led an incredible life and she endured incredible sufferings for the good of others during her life," said Beauregard. "We want to promote her life as a life of inspiration to others."

The stories are well documented by first-hand accounts and it is through that information that so much is known about her life and especially her love of God. Sr. Deborah Coffey, OSB, of Holy Angels Convent, said many of the saints offered their suffering for the salvation of others. "Many of the great saints do that and this is another modern-day example."

The Magevney Society members plan to see how the Catholics of Memphis receive the story of her virtuous life. If they are interested in helping promote her life, they may ask the church to proclaim her a servant of God.
